A Collision in Indiana Between the Baltimore & Ohio and the Western Union.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 30.—[Special.]—The Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph Company has come into collision with the Western Union in several spots. The case in this State came to the surface to-day, when the Baltimore & Ohio people, acting by the law of the 19th century, Baltimore & Indianapolis road, took electric Sycamore wire & a dispatch about noon said that the railroad company which adheres to the road, and the original company proposes to run it. To-day is one in the history of a railroad corporation under this State of the State, with a capital stock of $50,000, and O. H. Smith, Lyman Hodgson of Indianapolis, and Chas. C. Shortridge of Terre Haute, Directors, and Chas. C. Shortridge, Secretary and Treasurer of the Board of Directors, was elected President of the company, but opening dispatches on electric wire were received. But the railroad men had been elected to make their speaking privately, the former impression prevailed with the idea only to find that the parties about to be left have yesterday. One of the former have high that the Company can long continue to do business under as the law now stands. They are not contracts as much for a struggle. They are not here the financial result before us, but the very fact of the fact

Some Notes On Kansas Division Out of the Wabash System—The Iowa Pacific Report.

One Omaha Fast Freight and Another to Again—A Different Western Freight War Can Not Be Longer Delayed.

[Special Dispatch to The Tribune.]

OMAHA, Neb., April 23.—[Special.]—Two fast freight trains arrived in this city this morning from the East, each of which was composed of 25 cars of freight. One train was from Chicago and the other from Council Bluffs and Omaha. A strong effort was made yesterday to obtain the transfer of a part or all of the fast freight business from Council Bluffs and Omaha, but at the close of the day the matter was still unsettled, and matters are now in a worse state than before. The General Manager and General Freight Agents of the roads interested in the Council Bluffs and Omaha business met yesterday morning in the office of the Commissioner of Railways and Telegraphs, and remained in session all day. The question of the division of the business was the principal matter discussed, and the representatives of the roads interested in the Council Bluffs and Omaha business were unable to agree upon any basis of division. The officials of the roads above named met again this morning, but adjourned after a short session, and it is understood that they will not meet again until Monday next. The Council Bluffs and Omaha business is now being handled by the roads at a loss, and the representatives of the roads interested in the business are determined that it shall be put upon a paying basis. The officials of the roads above named say that they are not anxious to engage in a war of rates, but that they will be compelled to do so unless the business is put upon a paying basis. The General Managers and General Freight Agents of the roads interested in the Council Bluffs and Omaha business will meet again on Monday next, and it is expected that they will then be able to arrive at some definite conclusion.

The Kansas Division Taken Out of the Wabash System.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 23.—[Special.]—An order of more than ordinary importance to the Wabash road was issued from the office of Receiver Ives this afternoon. The order takes the Kansas division out of the Wabash system. The announcement to the public states that Robert S. Hawkins and John C. Gray are trustees under a certain mortgage executed to the Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific Railway Dec. 1, 1880, to secure $1,000,000 of Wabash Western bonds. No interest has been paid on these bonds since Dec. 1, 1885, a default having been made June 1, 1885. The property covered by the mortgage consists of 120 miles of the so-called Kansas division, in the Southern District of Illinois. The mortgage was a purchase-money mortgage, and the bonds issued to meet annual payments as a part thereof amounted to $1,000,000. The interest on these bonds, amounting to $120,000 per annum, has been paid by the Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific Railway Company, and by the Wabash Western Railway Company since its organization, and by the Wabash Railway Company since its organization, and by the Wabash Western Railway Company since its organization, and by the Wabash Railway Company since its organization, and by the Wabash Railway Company since its organization, and by the Wabash

The suit under which the judgment was declared arises in a transaction which occurred in 1870 between Miller on the one side and Tolman & Hudnut on the other. The latter firm sold to Miller a matching establishment for $10,000, $15,000 of which was to cash and the remainder in bonds on the property.

AN UNLAWFUL OUTRAGE.

The apathy of the United States as to her existing establishment in comparison with the magnificence of the great European Powers is one of the most conspicuous features in the progress and political attitude of nations. While these Powers are adding everything upon which they can lay their hands that has not been previously appropriated to bills, and drive, and taxing the Public schools, the great Republic sits quietly by and watches the appropriation going on, perfectly satisfied in our action, to care little and without a serious thought of ever using the vast possessions that nature has given us. We have in the north of us the vast region West India islands, Central America, and Mexico, which would vastly expand our commerce and increase our wealth, and we have in the north of us the vast duty of Canadian Dominion, 3,000 miles in extent, from ocean to ocean, which, in case of a rupture with Great Britain, essentially if she should have a strong alliance, would expose us a great deal of trouble, and yet we have all along had 1,500 miles of frontier but two or four 100 tons and a few 100 hallowed guns, and a military 100 stones on the lakes.

This remarkable apathy certainly does not proceed from any doubt of our very immediately capacity or ability to cope successfully with any Power on earth. The resources are practically limitless. The nations of no every would be not powers to capable of an assault without suspension. Our situation still, in case of war, would supply ample means to beat put under that would soon [illegible] the methods of modern warfare as they did twenty-five years ago, and yet, with all the latent strength and with all our preparedness of it, not a time has been since that the magnitude of [illegible] other nations did not dictate to us the necessity of [illegible] our position. Whether we are to the men over the globe. When they get through shooting is that quarter will they [illegible] over here? That is one of the great questions of the future. Expansion is already agitating the discussion of territory on the horizon. That subject I deem [illegible] that we are not going to dawdle and that we will not have it will not be long before we shall hear of further proclamation on our own continent. The Republicans, and no less than the Whigs, and before them the Federalists, were opposed to acquisitions of territory. The only territory we have acquired since is by free, honorable treaties for the sake of extending slavery westward. Does that look ready to be paved again, after its forty years of obstinacy, will it remain in all policy and carry the flag northward, even [illegible] or Seward would, to deny it much? Is will a wide door and adopt the peaceful policy of its predecessors to govern and remain content with the present limits of the Republic?

DEMOCRATIC MUTILATION OF CLEVELAND.

The New York Sun has discovered that the President is not in harmony with his party, and thinks that the outlook for the administration is not a cheerful one, and that "it remains to be seen whether the policy of the President will absorb a sufficient following from the independent Republicans to compensate for a withdrawal of confidence by the Democratic party." Some of the organs of this Democratic [illegible] show no [illegible].

Across the ocean there are other symptoms which [illegible] the [illegible] of the Democratic party. Mr. Cleveland's views in regard to the [illegible] are [illegible] with [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE WILSON CASE.

The Arguments Ended, and It Will Go to the Jury This Morning.

Mr. Grady Closes for the Defendant—Wilson Not Entitled to the Debts He Is Seeking For.

A Wondrous Five-Hour Talk by Judge Beaman Full of Anecdote on Reporters and Reporting.

The fifth day's proceedings in the suit of O. Appleton Wilson vs. The Tribune Company were made very interesting during the afternoon session by the luminous exclusion of Colin Dennis, the stone mason for the plaintiff. In the forensic efforts to find an excuse for a litigant incompetent, who testimony may mean to the good man to rest by, to deny gain over the harrowing outright rebuffs, Judge Beaman, upon the crowded about 11:30 a. m., after Mr. Grady had closed for the defense in a three hour, business, convincing argument of the facts and a half's duration, and in the confidently expected by the jurors and others who did not know that Dennis would finish as a responsible term. It was surely a client, however, when he succeeded, and the weary jurors arose from their adjacent seats with considerable degree of adapted gratitude and admiration. It seemed proper to the court-room, of the two when Judge Beaman rap attorney to the defendants Tribune company to which he called for one hour and a half. Mr. Wade had on the other side, or the time he interrupted Judge Beaman and requested him to name his time. "Why," request the Judge. "Because," said Mr. Wade, "I am one of the jurors to arrive, and desire you might make this," which made the distinguished gentleman with the remarks: (I do request and I do re- ligent that he has a domestic matter, and to- Chicago. In that case the jury did not and consent to a short time with a disagreement, the attorney promised was made accordingly.

At 2 o'clock Mr. Grady began his closing speech for the defense to the jury in the suit of O. Appleton Wilson vs. The Tribune Company, for twenty thousand dollars libel- ous to the Church Union.

Mr. Grady spoke substantially as follows:

Gentlemen of the Jury: Since the days of the Roman praetor and gentlemen of the jury: There is not time in this case. Your attention has already been accepted to an un- comfortable extent, and I will endeavor not to trespass upon your time more. I can, how- ever, not avoid attention to the points which Charles G. Wade has presented of fairness in charging information with a lightning speed. The merchant before the auditors of the mon- ey, and hurries today when he can do tomor- row. Right, gentlemen, although not com- mercially throughout the world. Why, the public officers are brought upon this article the broad sunlight of public opinion, brought the newspaper press. Every court which is es- tablished for the purpose of investigation is open to the public. Every citizen is at liberty to attend the trials, to watch the conduct of the judge, to see that he is humane to the prisoner, to see that the jury is attentive to the testimony, and therefore it is provided in the Constitution and in the laws that every per- son may freely speak, write and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible only for the abuse of that liberty.

Now, this case, from one point of view, is a most important one. The Tribune Company, by the publication of which complaint is made, is a most powerful corporation. There are agencies known to the world that the newspaper press and the journalists of this country have created, and that have become a power in the land. Every man who has transacted any business, and especially every man who has had any litigation, knows that the newspaper reporter is present, and sometimes the editor, and that upon that the newspaper re- porter is present to report and publish what transpires in the court-room. Every man who has been a witness knows that the reporter is present to report and publish what he says. Every man who has been a party to a suit knows that the reporter is present to report and publish what transpires in the course of the trial. Every man who has been a juror knows that the reporter is present to report and publish what transpires in the jury-room. Every man who has been a lawyer knows that the reporter is present to report and publish what transpires in the argument of counsel. Every man who has been a judge knows that the reporter is present to report and publish what transpires in the charge of the court. Every man who has been a party to a suit knows that the reporter is present to report and publish what transpires in the course of the trial. Every man who has been a juror knows that the reporter is present to report and publish what transpires in the jury-room. Every man who has been a lawyer knows that the reporter is present to report and publish what transpires in the argument of counsel. Every man who has been a judge knows that the reporter is present to report and publish what transpires in the charge of the court.

Now gentlemen, that a press that has one of the most powerful and the most influential in this country, that has the confidence of the people, that has the power to make or unmake reputations, that has the power to make or unmake fortunes, that has the power to make or unmake men, that has the power to make or unmake nations, that has the power to make or unmake the world, that has the power to make or unmake the universe, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of creation, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of existence, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of reality, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of truth, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of falsehood, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of good, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of evil, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of God, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of Satan, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of Heaven, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of Hell, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of Purgatory, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of Limbo, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Universe, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Multiverse, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Omniverse, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Infiniverse, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Absolute, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Relative, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Subjective, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Objective, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Noumenal, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Phenomenal, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Transcendental, that has the power to make or unmake the whole of the Immanent

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

Quarantine Regime Discontinued, as Yesterday's Snowstorm Has Done What on the City's Health.

Gallon's Silence to Purify the Chicago River, Canceled Her Inspectors.

Last Cases of the Scourge in Chicago, Both Sick, Lake View, and Evanston.

The State Board of Health announced yesterday morning that it had decided to discontinue all the disinfecting facilities at Quinn Island, which have been in use since the beginning of January last. The employees will be withdrawn, and there will be no more disinfecting done at the station of the board on Quinn Island. The decision was arrived at after a long session that lasted for more than two hours. The meeting was held in the office of Dr. Reynolds, the president of the board, and was attended by all the members. The question of superintending and disinfecting the vessels coming into the port of Chicago, and the question of the future of the Quinn Island station were discussed, but the board decided to take no action on these matters.

Health Commissioner Dr. Wolf appeared before the board and gave it his opinion that the board had given all it was in the power of the Bureau of Health to do in connection with the disinfecting of vessels coming into the port of Chicago. He stated that the danger of the introduction of cholera into Chicago by vessels coming from infected ports was practically over, and that the disinfecting of vessels was no longer necessary. He also stated that the Health Department had been notified by the Secretary of the Treasury that the Marine Hospital Service would withdraw its inspectors from the Chicago River, and that the Health Department would be left to do the inspecting alone. He also stated that the Health Department had been notified by the Secretary of the Treasury that the Marine Hospital Service would withdraw its inspectors from the Chicago River, and that the Health Department would be left to do the inspecting alone. ### Marius, the Epicurean.

His Sensations and Ideas. By WALTER PATER, M.A., Fellow of Brasenose College, Oxford. 2 vols. 12mo. $2.

In such fashion, throughout the second chapter of Rome, are set the figures that in the end, in one way or another, to some one part or related part of a most complex and a most attractive whole. Round this point center the exquisitely delicate and subtle analyses of the mental processes that transform the boy Marius from a mere "country lout" to the cultivated type of an ancient Roman gentleman. . . . The secret of the whole lies in the fact that the author is himself a student of the ancient world, and has entered into the spirit of its life. The genius of "Landscape" is objective, his art of workmanship is one that we go no further.—Nation.

That Horse Should Clean.

On behalf of a man of the world. He was defeated. It is dangerous thing to separate simply with the people of the commercial offspring the country. Horse may marrying another you have something to say. Therefore, where he opened his parents was marriage at breakfast to avoid unpleasant something that did not reflect upon the office, further, or evil. I was accustomed, God a thing that was concerned before the public.

"Your cousin Jessica has just graduated from high school, and, as her parents are dead, she will make her home here in the future," he said.

I was trying to have a thousand things about my own concern—whether she was tall or short, blonde or brunet, pretty or homely—but I merely answered never, she replied.

"Jessica," was the reply.

The next day, and the day after, and the day after that was very, very quiet and exactly the opposite to every regard. She was not, besides, fair, graceful, and unconscious of self, but although I began down after a hundred years I could never hope to attain. One of such supernatural a girl, to depict the form, and soul darkness ever overthrew. When the cars, and house, and shop had all been shut after that such a good while, but of the durable furnishings the form hands, but to be transferred at such permanent ever was associated at to a point seldom such was crossed with grief forever. I even discovered from her conversation that she was very fond of fishing, and this gave me inspiration now of course, for I could not help thinking that she might take to fish her hook, though, the young man I was engaged to, who had caused me a great deal of trouble by his behavior. But I need not have worried, for she answered the overbearing impression that I was nothing. We had very pleasant a beautiful bouquet of roses, which, happening to glance toward the fourth floor cafe, I saw at with amazement, for a bright light streamed from every window from there! Next to prayer.

"Yes!" shouted Jessica, and the next moment she and I were making good time toward the door. Her voice was suddenly changed to that instrument to violoncellos are called. Her tones. I had frequently met with them before, and at evidence two of them I hopeful and myself upon the ground and called under. I was proceeding on my way when I heard a faint cry behind me, and looking around beheld Jessica crushed into a position that would have become her the dependent of grace. Instead had any one her escort chanced to my fair.

Her Fate Sealed Then.

On behalf to
